what kind of powder you are using i see alliant powder has some loads for cheddite hulls red dot green dot and american select they must be a tapered hull as they are calling for federal wads hulls are easy to come by these days as many do not reload and throw hulls away at any club so aa and sts are very easy to obtain for free, but i have a case of rio shells that i am wondering if there is any load data out there available for them all my lyman manual mostly concentrates on are the 3 name us brand hulls don t recall ever seeing anything on them at hogdons load data website either extra points for spl6 wads because that s mostly what i have on hand, reloading components hulls rio hulls conform to strict quality criteria to answer the most demanding needs of manufacturers and individual loaders our extruded hull applies the most recent technologies to reach the highest levels of regularity in manufacturing, i just bought 100 rio multi hull shells from cabelas and i can t find any load data for them using american select powder i was doing research on the hulls and i ve read that they are cheddite hulls is that true i found some load data for cheddite hulls and rio primers this data calls for 18 1 grains of american select powder and 1 1 8 8 shot, i have only been reloading hulls for a year now 100 to 150 a week using winchester primers in rem and fed hulls or rio primers just for my rio hulls haven t had a primer just fall out but have forgot to seat them and end up with powder in my lap lol i was just told from a old timer that gave me the mec super sizer to decap then size them, rio and most other euro trash hulls are ok to reload but unless you have a bunch it may not be worth the effort use the data for cheddite hulls you will need a european primer fiocchi or rio as the primer pocket is a tad too large for a good fit with us primers a very good range pickup hulls is the remington sport or rem gun club, are shotgun hulls interchangeable during reloading hodgdon hs 6 in sts hulls is a remington peters hull straight or tapered peters blue magic peters blue magic hulls for sale peters blue magic shotgun shells reloading rio 12ga 2 75 hulls 11 8 oz remington blue magic hulls remington sts hulls loaded for buckshot and slugs, reloading data for rio 209 primers federal gold model hulls shot wt wad powder velocity pressure 1 oz aal2s1 18 5 amer select 1210 8171 1 oz aal2s1 18 2 clays, i m thinking noble sport or fio rio primer some say you can use a pocket primer conditioner from bpi that will make the w209 work but i have no experience with that to me the rio hull isn t worth the effort that being said i cant find any aa 410 new shells to save my life so i m stuck with the rem 410 amp reloading them, a seven and a half minute video discussing the types of things to look for in a quality shotshell hull to be reloaded includes discussion on body design base wad material and hull wall shape, in reloading volume of hull is all important it determines what you can stuff in for a waterfowl load and also is critical in how much peak pressure is developed i decided to measure all the 12ga hulls i had so i would know which to use when making loads so i wouldn t have to use, reloading components with the finest raw materials depth of research and development and unwavering commitments to quality rio ammunition manufactures their components in house offering them to reloaders and the oem market alike, interact with others on shot gun shells reloading ballistics chokes or anything that has to do with your shooting moderators donell67 pennsyltucky nv guide post a reply at the tome people had been whooping up the massive capacity of that hull i think the rio primer is kinda mild the wad in question gives low pressures it wasn,
Once fired hulls are a great way to keep your reloading cost down. Red hulls are available at a fraction of the price of new hulls. Load data is available on pages 116-119. Load data books are available at Hodgdon.com or Alliantpowder.com. I have purchased a bunch of Wal2sl wads which I understand are for Winchester AA hulls but I have a bunch of Rio Blue hulls as well. What is preventing me from using these wads in those hulls? I am not worried about getting precision loads that are within 5fps of each other and will load on the very light side velocity wise. Many months ago I asked for advice on reloading Rio 28 ga hulls. Now I've been through about 500 reloads of once fired Rios hulls. What I've found is about 15 so the metal bases come off the hull since I'm using an auto loader it means I have to get the separated base and hull out of the receiver. Jron Inc's Claybuster wad line is a well-established economical wad line built for target shooters and wing shooters alike with twenty one different models from which to choose. The Claybuster wad line can satisfy nearly every target or wing shooting application for reloading. The wads are manufactured and have always been manufactured with 100% prime resin so a consistent quality product. We make two shotgun primers to cover your needs: CCI 209 primers are for field and target loads in all gauges. The CCI 209M is a true magnum primer designed for heavy charges of slow burning propellants. Rio brand shotgun shells this feature is not available right now. Please try again later. I've used Rio hulls in the past with great success. 8 to 10 reloads before the hulls get soft and bend that was the white see thru type. I've noticed that while they bought a new manufacturing facility in Texas, there were no 16 hulls on the market. OK, well we'll help you out the best we can. Historically, new reloaders are discouraged from attempting to reload Rio hulls for the first time by some forum members and are encouraged to learn on gun clubs and Winchester AA hulls. Rio shotshell reloading hulls at Ballistic Products 12-ga 16-ga 20-ga primed hulls in all lengths. Rio hulls feature easy loading straight wall extruded tubes and deep plastic disk basewads for versatile load designs. Do the Rio hulls have paper base wads? I have read a lot of cautions against reloading the cheap Federals if they might have gotten wet having the paper base wads come loose and causing bore obstructions if the Rio hulls are one-piece hulls you should be able to reload them if you can find the data. Rio shotshells are a European import style straight walled separate basewad hull and load using generic import or Fiocchi load data like most metric based shotshell companies. The primer pockets are sized for European metric 209 primers approximately 0.001 larger and as such may have loose pockets should a reloader try to use Remington Federal or Winchester 209 primers.
